Teaching English by Design has become a classic resource for preservice teachers as well as in-service teachers who consider it their go-to guide to creating lessons and units organized around key concepts. In the Second Edition, Peter Smagorinsky updates the content for today's teachers with discussions of New Literacies, using technology in the classroom, LGBTQ issues, and an expansive new chapter on preparing for Beginning Teacher Performance Assessments. He also brings in a fresh new voice and outlook from Darren Rhym, a high school teacher in rural Georgia.

Following a new chapter on "Teaching Stressed Students Under Stressful Circumstances," Peter and Darren collaborated to create a unit on Power and Race. Designed to help students develop agency in improving their lives and those of the people in their communities, this sample unit provides a practical framework for addressing the needs of low-SES students who rely on limited resources. Together with Peter's unique insight about students, how they learn, and the kinds of classrooms that support their achievement, Teaching English by Design, 2/e is more valuable and relevant than ever. To fully participate in modern society citizens are required to have more advanced knowledge and technological sophistication than at any time in human civilization. A college degree has become the high school diploma of yesteryear. While the number of young people who attend college is increasing, graduation rates remain stagnant. The cost to our nation, our state, our communities, and to individual students when we do not prepare them for college is too high to maintain a viable democracy in modern times. Educational policy evolves slowly in response to this challenge, yet teachers are in the classroom right now working hard to prepare their students for life after high school as best they can. They seek immediate solutions. This graduate project Brain Building creates one: an easily implementable, standards-based curriculum for English classes that directly teaches growth mindset while building the literacy skills students need for college level work. It is based on growth mindset practices, teaches content related to mindset and brain development, provides examples and practice of literacy tools and goal-setting, and does so in a model that aligns with California's Expository Reading and Writing Course (ERWC), a ubiquitous curriculum in California senior high school English classrooms. Any competent high school English teacher can incorporate this unit into his or her teaching program to get seniors off to an excellent start toward achieving college and adult level literacy. 'Clever, comprehensive and current... a book I'll be returning to again and again.' Stuart Pryke 'Every English teacher will get huge value from this timely book.' Alex Quigley

Discusses the roles of library media specialists, teachers, and librarians and looks at specific curriculums Bryan Stevenson's incredible fight to end mass incarceration, excessive punishment, and racial inequality comes to life in this young adult adaptation of the acclaimed, #1 New York Times bestseller that was adapted into a major motion picture starring Michael B. Jordan, Jaime Foxx, and Brie Larson. In this very personal work--adapted from the original #1 bestseller, which the New York Times calls "as compelling as To Kill a Mockingbird, and in some ways more so"--renowned lawyer and social justice advocate Bryan Stevenson offers a glimpse into the lives of the wrongfully imprisoned and his efforts to fight for their freedom as the founder of the Equal Justice Initiative. Stevenson's story is one of working to protect basic human rights for the most vulnerable people in American society--the poor, the wrongly convicted, and those whose lives have been marked by discrimination and marginalization. Through this adaptation, young people of today will find themselves called to action and compassion in the pursuit of justice. A portion of the proceeds of this book will go to charity to help in Stevenson's important work to benefit the voiceless and the vulnerable as they attempt to navigate the broken U.S. justice system.
