This paper presents Senegal's Request for Disbursement Under the Rapid Credit Facility (RCF) and Purchase Under the Rapid Financing Instrument (RFI). The sharp global economic downturn and domestic containment measures have led to a substantial reduction in economic activity, with sectors such as tourism, transport, construction, and retail particularly hard-hit, and the pandemic in Europe is also translating into lower remittances. As a result, the short-term economic outlook has deteriorated significantly, with large uncertainties surrounding the duration and spread of the pandemic. The IMF's emergency financing under the RCF and the RFI is expected to provide much-needed liquidity to support the authorities' response to the crisis and could catalyze further assistance from the international community, preferably in the form of grants. Additional concessional donor support will be critical to close the remaining financing gap, ease the adjustment burden, and preserve Senegal's impressive economic achievements. Ensuring that disbursed funds are used in a well-targeted, cost-effective and transparent manner remains imperative. This guide provides a description of Federal Student Aid programs and the application process. Readers will find information on federal student aid as a source for funding postsecondary education, and know where to go for more detailed information. Funding Your Education: The Guide to Federal Student Aid speaks to high school students, college students, adults, and parents interested in finding out about financial aid from the federal government to help pay for education expenses at an eligible college, technical school, vocational school, or graduate school. This handbook is a compilation of the disbursement policies, guidelines, procedures, and practices of the Asian Development Bank (ADB). Assesses progress in 55 developing countries and helps us understand the challenges in making aid more effective in advancing development. This guide describes the four types of loans offered by the Direct Loan Program[SM]: (1) Direct Subsidized Loans; (2) Direct Unsubsidized Loans; (3) Direct PLUS Loans; and (4) Direct Consolidation Loans. Among the topics covered in the guide are: Use of Your Loan Money, The Master Promissory Note, How Your Loans Will Be Disbursed (Paid Out), Direct PLUS Loan Interest Rate and Payment of Interest, Half-time Enrollment, Changes You Must Report, Trouble Making Payments, Conditions for Canceling All or Part of Your Loan, and National Student Loan Data System (NSLDS). A Borrower's Rights and Responsibilities form is also included. The Code of Federal Regulations is the codification of the general and permanent rules published in the Federal Register by the executive departments and agencies of the Federal Government. Accounting Information Systems provides a comprehensive knowledgebase of the systems that generate, evaluate, summarize, and report accounting information. Balancing technical concepts and student comprehension, this textbook introduces only the most-necessary technology in a clear and accessible style. The text focuses on business processes and accounting and IT controls, and includes discussion of relevant aspects of ethics and corporate governance. Relatable real-world examples and abundant end-of-chapter resources reinforce Accounting Information Systems (AIS) concepts and their use in day-to-day operation. Now in its fourth edition, this popular textbook explains IT controls using the AICPA Trust Services Principles framework—a comprehensive yet easy-to-understand framework of IT controls—and allows for incorporating hands-on learning to complement theoretical concepts. A full set of pedagogical features enables students to easily comprehend the material, understand data flow diagrams and document flowcharts, discuss case studies and examples, and successfully answer end-of-chapter questions. The book's focus on ease of use, and its straightforward presentation of business processes and related controls, make it an ideal primary text for business or accounting students in AIS courses.

Warrant from Elizabeth I, signed by William Parker, Master of the Mary Rose and Victualer of the Fleet, authorizing the Treasurer William Cecil, Lord Burghley, to disburse 20,000 pounds to furnish ships for Sir Francis Drake and Sir John Hawkins, with an additional 13,266 pounds, 13s 8d to be disbursed once the ships return for "wages and tonnage." On verso, endorsement by William Cecil, Lord Burghley, for 10,000 pounds to be paid to Richard Carmarthen and Thomas Middleton.

Excerpt from Initial Report of the Nevada Tax Commission: 1913-1914 The installation of such a system, in comparison with that at present in use, would pay for its cost many times over each year and provide means for the annual issuance of a detailed statement of receipts and disbursements for the benefit of all taxpayers. Receipts from the sale of state lands, escheats, penal fines, and revenue from other designated sources are not available for disbursement in payment of ordinary expenses. In fact, such receipts cannot be disbursed at all, but go to the credit of trust funds, the interest alone from the investment of which is available for use, and this use being confined strictly to the support of education. Maritime Administration: Proceeds from the Sale of Obsolete Vessels Were Accounted for, Allocated, and Disbursed Consistent with Applicable Law Essay from the year 2014 in the subject Politics - International Politics - Topic: Development Politics, grade: 70, South Bank University London, course: Msc.Development Studies, language: English, abstract: In the past, countries developed at their own pace without assistance from other countries. However, with the growing disparities between the developed and the least developed countries it has become imperative for the 'have' to assist the 'have not' to bridge the yawning gap in the levels of human development around the world but the disbursement of aid has become a major challenge. This paper tries to find out how aid can be delivered effectively to help to achieve sustainable development in recipient countries. The first part tries to explain what constitute aid by various authorities on the subject, the types and origin of aid. The second part identifies the various posits in the aid debate. The third section stipulates some of the conditions necessary for aid disbursement to be effective. The final part makes up the conclusion. This audit report discusses the management and payment of interest penalties incurred resulting from provisions of the Prompt Payment Act by U.S. government organizations responsible for the management of the Iraq Relief and Reconstruction Fund. Objective. The objective of this audit was to determine whether expenditures by U.S. government organizations responsible for the management of the Iraq Relief and Reconstruction Fund were made in compliance with the Prompt Payment Act and other applicable policies and regulations. Results. During fiscal year 2005, approximately $1.4 million in interest penalty payments were made by the Army against Iraq Relief and Reconstruction Fund disbursements of about $5.275 billion made by Department of Defense organizations because of late payments of contractor invoices. This amount of interest exceeded an Army management goal, which stipulated that there be no more than $85 in interest penalty payments for every million dollars disbursed; in this case that amount would have been $448,381. However, the $1.4 million in interest penalties paid amounted to about $259 in interest penalties per million disbursed and exceeded the Army goal by 304 percent. As a result, interest penalties paid to contractors from the Iraq Relief and Reconstruction Fund appropriation reduced, dollar-for-dollar, the availability of funds appropriated for the reconstruction of Iraq and for the benefit of the Iraqi people. If the Army achieves the current management goal of no more than $85 in interest penalty payments for every million dollars disbursed, for the remaining Department of Defense Iraq Relief and Reconstruction Fund apportioned funds of approximately $7.0 billion yet to be disbursed, the Army could avoid making interest penalty payments of more than $1.2 million and make better use of those funds to support pressing relief and reconstruction needs. This landmark report, the results of a survey conducted in 2006, provides a snapshot of aid effectiveness in 2005 globally and for 30 donor countries/institutions. Evidence shows that financial aid increases college enrollment. For many students at low-cost community colleges, this aid is intended to cover more than tuition and fees; after those are paid, the remainder is paid out, or "refunded," to students to help with their living expenses while they are enrolled in school. Often, however, the total amount of aid does not come close to covering the cost of attendance for full-time students. Many still struggle to find the means to support their studies and pay their bills, and the majority of students enrolled at two-year public institutions report feeling financial stress related to paying for school. Most colleges distribute financial aid refund amounts to students in one or two lump sums during the term. "Aid Like A Paycheck" is a study of an alternative approach, in which financial aid refunds are disbursed biweekly, with the goal of helping students stretch their financial aid (including federal Pell Grants, state aid, and loans) to cover expenses throughout the term. "MDRC" is conducting a mixed-methods study of biweekly disbursements at two community colleges in the metropolitan area of Houston, Texas. The study includes qualitative research on the program's implementation and a randomized controlled trial to rigorously estimate the impacts of the policy on students' academic and financial outcomes. Results at the midpoint of the evaluation present a mixed picture: (1) The colleges were able to disburse aid biweekly as intended, but communications about the policy and about financial aid in general were often unclear to students; (2) It appears that students assigned to receive biweekly disbursements were more likely than those receiving a standard lump sum to feel that their finances caused significant stress at the start of the term. By the end of the semester, students in the two groups reported comparable levels of financial stress; (3) Biweekly disbursements reduced students' use of federal loans and debt to the college after one semester, without reducing the overall aid they received; (4) On average, there is little consistent evidence of biweekly disbursements improving students' key academic outcomes. However, at one college, students in the biweekly group experienced a 6 percentage point increase in enrollment in the second semester of school; and (5) Although the policy raised the possibility of cost savings for the colleges and the federal government, there is little evidence of such savings so far. These interim findings should be viewed with caution, but colleges interested in moving to biweekly disbursements may find useful lessons from the early implementers, as discussed in this report. In 2018 MDRC will present final results based on further research, including additional students and longer follow-up, to better understand the impacts of biweekly disbursements at the two Houston-area colleges. The final report will also include a deeper look at the program's implementation at a third community college district, where biweekly disbursements of financial aid refunds recently became the standard policy for all students.
