Assessing Academic Programs in Higher Education Jun 01 2020 Higher education professionals have moved from teaching- to learning-centered models for designing and assessing courses and curricula. Faculty work collaboratively to identify learning objectives and assessment strategies, set standards, design effective curricula and courses, assess the impact of their efforts on student learning, reflect on results, and implement appropriate changes to increase student learning. Assessment is an integral component of this learner-centered approach, and it involves the use of empirical data to refine programs and improve student learning. Based on the author's extensive experience conducting assessment training workshops, this book is an expansion of a workshop/consultation guide that has been used to provide assessment training to thousands of busy professionals. Assessing Academic Programs in Higher Education provides a comprehensive introduction to planning and implementing the assessment of college and university academic programs. Written for college and university administrators, assessment officers, department chairs, and faculty who are involved in developing and implementing assessment programs, this book is a realistic, pragmatic guide for developing and implementing meaningful, manageable, and sustainable assessment programs that focus faculty attention on student learning. Jump-Start Your Learning Objectives Mar 03 2023 Detailed learning objectives are crucial to the instructional systems development (ISD) process. Objectives let trainers, learners, and managers know what the training will accomplish. They also allow trainers to evaluate learner progress and the training's effectiveness. This issue delivers a five-step process to design learning objectives. Learn how to identify training needs, state training goals, determine key content, designate the level of learning required, and generate specific, measureable learning objectives. This issue also includes practical worksheets, templates, and examples to help readers easily and successfully create their own learning objectives.

Training That Delivers Results Jan 21 2022 Too often today, when companies recognize the need for training in a specific topic--business writing, behavior interviewing, customer service, or other--they apply the same standard instruction they utilized the last time they addressed a need for training--which was in a completely different area! But one-size-fits-all approaches rarely work anywhere, especially in the professional world. Training That Delivers Results offers a far better way to educate employees, one that connects learning solutions with strategic business goals. With more than 30 years of experience as a learning and performance improvement professional, author Dick Handshaw proposes that organizations cannot simply tell their trainers what to teach but rather they need to proactively collect data in order to define problems and develop unique training interventions. Handshaw's results-oriented model is systematic, yet flexible, and works for both instructor-led training and e-learning. Readers will learn how to:

- Analyze performance gaps
- Create targeted performance objectives and connect them with the right measurement tools
- Determine the best instructional strategy and the appropriate media
- Build consensus with project blueprint meetings
- Evaluate the effectiveness of training and use the data to continually improve

Training will not be effective and beneficial in sustaining, rewarding ways unless the employee education experience is successfully linked with the overall business goals. Training That Delivers Results supplies the tools, worksheets, and assessments needed to tie the learning experience to enhanced performance outcomes--and deliver sustainable, quantifiable business results.

Training Objectives, Transfer, Validation and Evaluation Jul 15 2021 Using a stratified random sample, this paper examines the training practices of setting objectives, transfer, validation and evaluation in Sri Lanka. The paper further sets out to compare those practices across local, foreign and joint-venture companies based on the assumption that there may be significant differences across companies of different ownership. The findings reveal evidence of the awareness and practice of setting objectives, transfer, validation and evaluation. Overall, the results of the analysis of variance do not confirm the hypotheses that foreign-owned companies exhibit more training practices of setting objectives, transfer, validation and evaluation than local and joint-venture companies. The paper addresses existing practice and implications.
