This report provides the results of the Dept. of Transportation (DoT) Office of Inspector General's implementation of Section 307 of the Nat. Highway Systems Designation Act (NHSDA). These provisions are intended, in part, to ensure that design and engineering (D&E) firms' indirect cost rates do not contain unallowable costs. The OIG began this audit because of concerns expressed by state transportation officials regarding the allowability of executive compensation and other indirect costs at some D&E firms. Audit objectives were to evaluate the implementation of NHSDA Section 307 audit requirements, and test the allowability of executive compensation and other high risk indirect cost elements billed by D&E firms on state DoT contracts. Requirements for Federal Awards (Uniform Guidance) published by the Office of Management and Budget (OMB) on December 26, 2013. This rule is necessary in order to incorporate into regulation and thus bring into effect the Uniform Guidance as required by OMB. Implementation of this guidance will reduce administrative burden and risk of waste, fraud, and abuse for the approximately $600 billion per year awarded in Federal financial assistance. The result will be more Federal dollars reprogrammed to support the mission, new entities able to compete and win awards, and ultimately a stronger framework to provide key services to American citizens and support the basic research that underpins the United States economy. This book contains: - The complete text of the Uniform Administrative Requirements, Cost Principles, and Audit Requirements for Federal Awards - Federal Awarding Agency Regulatory Implementation (US Department of the Interior Regulation) (DOI) (2018 Edition) - A table of contents with the page number of each section The objectives of this study are to describe experiences in price setting and how pricing has been used to attain better coverage, quality, financial protection, and health outcomes. It builds on newly commissioned case studies and lessons learned in calculating prices, negotiating with providers, and monitoring changes. Recognising that no single model is applicable to all settings, the study aimed to generate best practices and identify areas for future research, particularly in low- and middle-income settings. The report and the case studies were jointly developed by the OECD and the WHO Centre for Health Development in Kobe (Japan). This book contains: - The complete text of the Uniform Administrative Requirements, Cost Principles, and Audit Requirements for Federal Awards - Federal Awarding Agency Regulatory Implementation (US Department of Education Regulation) (ED) (2018 Edition) - A table of contents with the page number of each section The Office of Management and Budget (OMB) promulgated uniform cost principles applicable to grants and contracts with State and local governments in a management circular issued in 1968. A review was made to determine the intent, adequacy, and extent of implementation of this circular. Federal assistance accounts for an estimated 25 percent of State and local resources. Agencies recognize and pay direct program costs; however, often they do not recognize and pay the allocated or indirect costs of providing support services. The circular has not met its original objective, to identify the total allowable costs incurred by

State and local governments in administering Federal programs. Grantees are not systematically identifying, accumulating, or allocating costs because some funding agencies employ practices which discourage or prohibit total cost determinations by grantees and allow grantees to use arbitrary indirect cost rates and to charge indirect costs to grants without a plan of allocation. Also, Federal guidance in the preparation of plans of allocation has not been provided, and the circular's objectives have not received top-level management support. In February 2002, the Senate Select Committee on Intelligence and the House Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence agreed to conduct a Joint Inquiry into the activities of the U.S. Intelligence Community in connection with the terrorist attacks perpetrated against our nation on September 11, 2001. This report consists of 832 pages that presents the joint inquiry's findings and conclusions, plus an accompanying narrative, and a series of recommendations. This is the declassified version of the Final Report of the Joint Inquiry that was held by the U. S. Congress into the attacks of September 11, 2001. For reasons of printing production it has been produced in two volumes but is otherwise identical to the one volume report initially released by the Congress to the media. The entire narrative report is included in the first volume, and the appendices and supplementary information are included in the second volume.

Policymakers and program managers are continually seeking ways to improve accountability in achieving an entity's mission. A key factor in improving accountability in achieving an entity's mission is to implement an effective internal control system. An effective internal control system helps an entity adapt to shifting environments, evolving demands, changing risks, and new priorities. As programs change and entities strive to improve operational processes and implement new technology, management continually evaluates its internal control system so that it is effective and updated when necessary. Section 3512 (c) and (d) of Title 31 of the United States Code (commonly known as the Federal Managers' Financial Integrity Act (FMFIA)) requires the Comptroller General to issue standards for internal control in the federal government. Research universities are critical contributors to our national research enterprise. They are the principal source of a world-class labor force and fundamental discoveries that enhance our lives and the lives of others around the world. These institutions help to create an educated citizenry capable of making informed and crucial choices as participants in a democratic society. However many are concerned that the unintended cumulative effect of federal regulations undercuts the productivity of the research enterprise and diminishes the return on the federal investment in research. Optimizing the Nation's Investment in Academic Research reviews the regulatory framework as it currently exists, considers specific regulations that have placed undue and often unanticipated burdens on the research enterprise, and reassesses the process by which these regulations are created, reviewed, and retired. This review is critical to strengthen the partnership between the federal government and research institutions, to maximize the creation of new knowledge and products, to provide for the effective training and education of the next generation of scholars and workers, and to optimize the return on the federal investment in research for the benefit of the American people. Updated as of May 29, 2018 To deliver on the promise of a 21st-Century government that is more efficient, effective and transparent, the Office of Management and Budget (OMB) is streamlining the Federal government's guidance on Administrative Requirements, Cost Principles, and Audit Requirements for Federal awards. These modifications are a key component of a larger Federal effort to more effectively focus Federal resources on improving performance and outcomes while ensuring the financial integrity of taxpayer dollars in partnership with non-Federal stakeholders. This guidance provides a governmentwide framework for grants management which will be complemented by additional efforts to strengthen program outcomes through innovative and effective use of grant-making models, performance metrics, and evaluation. This reform of OMB guidance will reduce administrative burden for non-Federal entities receiving Federal awards while reducing the risk of waste, fraud and abuse. Implementation of this guidance will reduce administrative burden and risk of waste, fraud, and abuse for the approximately $600 billion per year awarded in Federal financial assistance. The result will be more Federal dollars reprogrammed to support the mission, new entities able to compete and win awards, and ultimately a stronger framework to provide key services to American citizens and support the basic research that underpins the United States economy. This book contains: - The complete text of the Uniform Administrative Requirements, Cost Principles, and Audit Requirements for Federal Awards - Federal Awarding Agency Regulatory Implementation (US Department of Justice Regulation) (DOJ) (2018 Edition) - A table of contents with the page number of each section The Uniform Guidance, originally published by the Office of Management and Budget (OMB) on December 26, 2014, provided recipients of Federal awards with one standardized set of compliance regulations to assist them in effectively managing their awards. The regulations, found in Title 2 CFR Part 200, superseded eight previous OMB circulars (A-21, -50, -87, -89, -102, -110, -122, and -133). This handbook serves as a quick guide and reference book for non-Federal entities who may be attempting to submit a grant to a Federal agency, or who have already received an award and wish to understand more about the compliance regulations. In addition to containing the full set of regulations, this handbook also includes easy-to-understand commentary, references to additional and corresponding regulations, links to external sources, and other information. In 2020, OMB revised the regulations in 2 CFR 200 to include additional requirements that ensure consistency with language enacted in National Defense Authorization Acts and the Federal Funding Accountability and Transparency Act (FFATA). Additionally, OMB processed revisions to enhance overall readability and provide clarity in regulatory interpretation. This second edition includes the most recent 2020 regulatory updates as well as updated commentary that reflect additional governmentwide changes. Non-Federal entities who may find this publication of particular use include institutions of higher education (IHEs), hospitals, states, Indian tribes, and non-profit organizations (regardless of their status as a prime awardee or a subrecipient). Individuals who may find this handbook of particular use as a resource include independent auditors, principal investigators, project directors, grant writers, researchers, and research administrators.
