Description: Memorandum, no. 2. Assignment of Flight Leader. The 18th century was a wealth of knowledge, exploration and rapidly growing technology and expanding record-keeping made possible by advances in the printing press. In its determination to preserve the century of revolution, Gale initiated a revolution of its own: digitization of epic proportions to preserve these invaluable works in the largest archive of its kind. Now for the first time these high-quality digital copies of original 18th century manuscripts are available in print, making them highly accessible to libraries, undergraduate students, and independent scholars. Delve into what it was like to live during the eighteenth century by reading the first-hand accounts of everyday people, including city dwellers and farmers, businessmen and bankers, artisans and merchants, artists and their patrons, politicians and their constituents. Original texts make the American, French, and Industrial revolutions vividly contemporary. ++++ The below data was compiled from various identification fields in the bibliographic record of this title. This data is provided as an additional tool in helping to insure edition identification: ++++ Bodleian Library (Oxford) T300938 Contains a blank diary on "52 double pages of ruled paper" and various tables and lists of useful information for the year, words of favourite new songs, etc. Two frontispiece engravings, one folded. Newcastle upon Tyne: Printed by T. Saint, for Whitfield and Co. and W. Creech, Edinburgh., [1780?]. [120], 48 p., [2] leaves of plates (1 folded): ill.; 12° "This book explains how to organize and write legal memoranda that will communicate information to the reader clearly and effectively. It is written primarily for first-year law students, but upper-class law students and practicing attorneys can also use it, to produce more effective legal memoranda or written legal analyses generally"-- William Plumer of New Hampshire merits the recognition of historical students along with those other pioneer diarists of the United States Senate because his Memorandum is an almost daily record of sessions in the Senate from October 17, 1803, when Congress convened in special session to consider the treaty and conventions with France respecting the purchase of Louisiana, until the close of his term in March 1807. Six agents have already died trying to crack a lethal ring of Nazis determined to revive the Third Reich, and Agent Quiller is the last hope as he single-handedly undertakes this hazardous mission, in a new edition of the Edgar Award-winning suspense novel. Foreword Also Written By Malcolm M. Willey. Contains the full texts of all Tax Court decisions entered from Oct. 24, 1942 to date, with case table and topical index. Excerpt from Memorandum: In the Eightieth Year of His Age Hough a man of some prominence in his day and a member of a family still well known and honored in Massachusetts, the writer of this Memorandum is unnoticed in most books of reference, and it seems fitting. About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books. Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work.
