Just a Drop of Water Aug 19 2021 Winner of the Crystal Kite Award, this touching story explores what it mean to be a good friend, how you should react to a bully, and makes the events of September 11th, 2001 personal. In this story about growing up in a difficult part of America's history, Jake Green is introduced as a cross country runner who wants to be a soldier and an American hero when he grows up. Before he can work far towards these goals, September 11th happens, and it is discovered that one of the hijackers lives in Jake's town. The children in Jake's town try to process everything, but they struggle. Jake's classmate Bobby beats up Jake's best friend, Sam Madina, just for being an Arab Muslim. According to his own code of conduct, Jake wants to fight Bobby for messing with his best friend. The situation gets more complicated when Sam's father is detained and interrogated by the FBI. Jake's mother doubts Sam's father's innocence. Jake must choose between believing his parents and leaving Bobby alone or defending Sam.

Fortune's Bones Jan 12 2021 There is a skeleton in the Mattatuck Museum in Connecticut. It has been in the town for over 200 years. In 1996, community members decided to find out what they could about it. Historians discovered that the bones were those of a slave name Fortune, who was owned by a local doctor. After Fortune's death, the doctor rendered the bones. Further research revealed that Fortune had married, had fathered four children, and had been baptized later in life. His bones suggest that after a life of arduous labor, he died in 1798 at about the age of 60. Marilyn Nelson wrote The Manumission Requiem to commemorate Fortune's life. Detailed notes and archival photographs enhance the reader's appreciation of the poem.

Double-Entry Journal Note-Taking System Notebook May 08 2023 The double-entry journal strategy is easy to implement but should be used frequently to be effective. Students write in their own language about what they are learning. For teachers and students, entries influence learning by revealing problems, questions, connections, and concerns. Although it is a strategy most commonly found in language arts, social studies, science, reading, and math, students in elective classes such as "mythology and Computer sciences," "Shop," and fine arts can benefit as well. Double-entry journals serve a variety of purposes. Students record their thoughts and feelings or reactions to text excerpts or short films, online research, and/or to their own questions and areas of interest relating to the area being studied Our notebooks are preformatted with two columns already laid out with a topic and date header atop each page. The left column is labeled "From the text" as a simple prompt reminder that the left column is for referencing the page numbers and source material being studied. In the left column of the double-entry journal, students should reference vocabulary words, short quotations, or other passages from or features of the text that interest them or that elicit a strong response. They record the word, quotation or brief passage, either verbatim or in paraphrased form. In the right-hand column, (which we have labeled "From Your Mind") students record their reactions, feelings, interpretations, or other responses to the text segments/features they have selected. How does the double-entry journal help students? Some examples: To react to a writer's main idea, topic development, argument, etc. To keep track of their learning during question and answer sessions To look at specific lines and passages for clarity of meaning To interpret a line of poetry or to decide how they feel about a character (words, actions, etc.) To explore a topic or idea. (By being asked to explain what specific words or phrases mean, students will be able to reference reasons and evidence to support their views, their understandings.)
