Classification Manual for Voice Disorders Nov-11 2021 To date, there are 300 disorders associated with voice, but until now there has never been a published manual that classifies these disorders. Borrowing from the successful organizational schema of the American Psychiatric Association's Diagnostic Statistical Manual (DSM-IV), the Classification Manual for Voice Disorders-I provides the framework for classifying voice disorders using the following criteria for each disorder: essential and associated features; vocal impairment; clinical history and demographic profile; course and complications; medical and voice differential diagnosis; and severity criteria.

Classification Manual for Voice Disorders-I is a project of ASHA's Special Interest Division 3, Voice and Voice Disorders (DIV 3), originally directed by contributing authors Moya Andrews, Diane Bless, Daniel Boone, Janina Casper, Leslie Glaze, Mark Karnell, Christy Ludlow, and Joe Stemple. The text was edited over a period of several years by the authoritative group of voice disorders professionals, including Kathleen Verdolini, Clark Rosen, and Ryan Branski. This version represents the fields of speech language pathology, voice science, and otolaryngology. CMVD-I lists most conditions that may negatively affect the ability to produce voice, based on the most current knowledge. These conditions comprise 30 structural pathologies, 25 neurological disorders, 20 aerodigestive conditions, 13 psychological disturbances, 15 systemic diseases, four inflammatory processes, four traumatic conditions, and five miscellaneous voice disorders. CMVD-I is a must-have resource for professionals who specialize in voice disorders, especially speech-language pathologists and otolaryngologists. The handy organization of this reference makes it a convenient and accessible resource for voice coaches and teachers of singing. It will also be invaluable as a textbook in master's-level communication sciences programs throughout the world. Proceedings received by Division 3 will be used to support the mission of Special Interest Division 3, which provides continuing education and networking opportunities to promote learning and advocacy for voice issues from professional, clinical, educational, and scientific perspectives.

Talking Proper
Mar 03 2021 Talking Proper is a history of the rise and fall of the English accent as a badge of cultural, social, and class identity. Lynda Mugglestone traces the origins of the phenomenon in late eighteenth-century London, follows its history through the nineteenth and twentieth centuries, and charts its downfall in the era of New Labor. This is a witty, readable account of a fascinating subject, liberally spiced with quotations from English speech and writing over the past 250 years

Here's how to Do Accent Modification Feb 26 2023

Pragmatics of Accents Sep 09 2021 What impact do accents have on our lives as we interact with one another? Are accents more than simple sets of phonetic features that allow us to differentiate from one dialect, variety or style, to the other? What processes and relationships are at work when we speak with what those around us perceive as a 'accent'? In the 12 chapters of this volume, an international group of sociolinguists, applied linguists, anthropologists, and scholars in media studies, develop an innovative approach that we describe as the 'pragmatics of accents'. In this volume, we provide a variety of languages and go beyond the traditional structural description of accents. From ideologies in national contexts, to L2 education, to accent discrimination in the media and the workplace, this volume embraces a new perspective that focuses on the experience of accents as symbolic resources, and emphasizes the importance of context in the experience of accents.

Expressiveness in music performance May 17 2022 What does it mean to be expressive in music performance across diverse historical and cultural domains? What are the means at the disposal of a performer in various time periods and musical practices and conventions? What are the conceptualisations of expression and the roles of performers that shape expressive performance? This book brings together research from a range of disciplines that use diverse methodologies to provide new perspectives and form answers to these questions about the meaning, means, and contextualisation of expressive performance in music. The contributors to this book explore expressiveness in music performance in four interlinked parts. Starting with the philosophical and historical underpinnings crucially relevant for Western classical musical performance it then reaches out to cross-cultural issues and finally focuses the attention on various practical problems, including the teaching of expressive music performance skills. The overview provides a focussed and comprehensive account of the current state of research on new developments and a prospective of future directions. This is a valuable new text for those in the fields of music, music psychology, and music education.

From Sugar Camps to Star Barns Aug 08 2021 Rural Pennsylvania's landscapes are evocative, richly textured testimonies to the lives and skills of generations of builders—and architects as well as local builders and craft workers. Farmhouses and silos and fences, even field patterns attest to how residents over the years have a sense of place that was not only functional but also comfortable and aesthetically appropriate for the time. From Sugar Camps to Star Barns tells the story of one place, a landscape that evolved in southwestern Pennsylvania's Somerset County. McMurry traces the rural life and landscape of Somerset County as it evolved from earliest settlement days. Eighteenth-century residents were a forest people, living in sparsely built farmsteads and making free use of the heavily forested landscape. A makeshift sugar camp typified their hardscrabble lives. In the nineteenth century, the people of this area turned to farming. Prompted by the "market revolution" that came to Somerset County, they pursued a highly varied agriculture, combining a subsistence base with robust production of commodities shipped to distant cities. The landscape reflected this combination of the local and the cosmopolitan—and a comfort that reached its full expression in the distinctive two-story banked farmhouse with a decker porch, flanked by a substantial Pennsylvania barn. The twentieth century brought a more industrialized agriculture to Somerset County. But the shift to profit-and-loss farming also meant the accentuation of landscape elements specific to market production. The magnificent "star barns" of this era overshadowed the houses, and ancillary structures, such as "peepie houses" and silos, spoke to the pressures of efficient mass production. The subsequent rise of coal mining helped to stimulate this trend by supplying local markets and by creating an incentive for farmers to visually distinguish their landscapes from those of the coal-patch towns. Illustrated with photographs, maps, drawings, and diagrams, From Sugar Camps to Star Barns demonstrates how much we can learn about the economy and culture of a particular place simply by being attentive to the built landscape.

Hostile Takeover Jul 07 2021 This detailed analysis examines the structure of Republican committee membership in the U.S. House of Representatives between 1990 and 1995. Douglas Koopman's account of the House Republicans' rise to majority power describes the strategies adopted by the Republican minority to oppose the majority's legislative efforts. The author explains how their actions as a minority provide insight into the current and future Republican policy agenda. Delineating the motives of House Republican leadership and their varying degrees of party loyalty, Hostile Takeover astutely explains that by transforming their resistance to Democratic initiatives into aggressive assaults on the entire majority agenda, House Republicans positioned themselves to take power after the watershed 1994 elections and to define a new legitimate political discourse.

Language Change and Variation in Gibraltar Mar 15 2022 While much has been written about Gibraltar from historical and political perspectives, sociolinguistic aspects have been largely overlooked. This book describes the influences which have shaped the colony's linguistic development since the British occupation in 1704, and the relationship between the three principal means of communication: English, Spanish and the colloquial switching variant Yanito. The study then focuses its attentions on the communicative forms and functions of Gibraltarian English. The closing of the border between Gibraltar and Spain (1969-1982), which effectively isolated the colony, had important sociolinguistic repercussions. This volume presents the first full account of the language attitudes and identity of a new generation of Gibraltarians, all of whom were born after the border was re-opened. Adopting a variationist approach, this study analyses the extent to which the language use and phonetic realisations of young Gibraltarians differ from those of previous generations and the factors conditioning language variation and change.

Playing the Waves Aug 28 2020 Dogma 95, the avant-garde filmmaking movement founded by the Danish director Lars von Trier and three of his fellow directors, was launched in 1995 at an elite cinema conference in Paris—when von Trier was called to speak about the future of film but instead showered the audience with pomp and circumstance announcing the new movement and its manifesto. A refreshingly original critical commentary on the director and his practice, Playing the Waves is a paramount work to one of new media's most provocative genres: games and gaming. Playing the cleverly puns on the title of one of von Trier's most famous features and argues that Dogma 95, like much of the director's low-budget realist productions, is a game that takes cinema beyond the traditional confines of film aesthetics and dramatic rules. Simons articulates the ways in which von Trier redefines the practice of filmmaking as a rule-bound activity, and stipulates the forms and structures of games von Trier's films bear on his films, as well as the sobering lessons he draws from economic and evolutionary game theory. Much like the director's films, this fascinating volume moves the traditional point of view of film theory and film aesthetics to the next level and demonstrates we have much to learn from the perspective of game studies and game theory.

Machine Conversations Feb 20 2020 Machine Conversations is a collection of some of the best research available in the practical arts of machine conversation. The book describes various attempts to create practical and flexible machine conversation systems of talking to computers in an unrestricted version of English or some other language. While this book employs and advances the theory of dialogue and its linguistic underpinnings, the emphasis is on practice, both in university research laboratories and in company research and development. Since the focus is on the task and on the performance, this book provides some of the first-rate work taking place in industry apart from the academic tradition. It also reveals striking and relevant facts about the tone of machine conversations and closely evaluates what users require. Machine Conversations is an excellent reference for researchers interested in computational linguistics, cognitive science, natural language processing, artificial intelligence, human-computer interfaces and machine learning.

Musical scrapbook Jan 25 2023 André Pogoriloffsky was born in Bucharest, Romania in February 1968. * Starting with 1982, he studied music independently, helped by several private professors. * In 1989 A.P. started to hear in his head a strange yet beautiful music that he was unable to notate. Short excerpts were presented orally to his musician friends who confirmed that the temporal fabric of that music could be rendered satisfactorily with help from the traditional, bar-rhythmical, semiographic notation. Between that point and 1994, A.P. tried to formulate a theory and a notation for music, the first result being his first published book - "Energies of musical time studies of pulsatory functionalism." * In the late '90s, A.P. discovered cognitive musicology and started to merge his own discoveries with the bulk of scientific contributions from this interdisciplinary domain. After abandoning several approaches the final result a book called "The music of the Temporalists." * The author is currently living in his hometown, Bucharest, along with his wife Simona and his daughter I.
