Designed for authors of the Security Features User's Guide (SFUG) for a specific trusted system undergoing evaluation as a trusted product. Discusses the intent behind the requirement for a Security Features User's Guide and the relationship to other requirements in Trusted Computer System Evaluation Criteria. Describes the various approaches to writing a SFUG. Extensive bibliography. February issue includes Appendix entitled Directory of United States Government periodicals and subscription publications; September issue includes List of depository libraries; June and December issues include semiannual index The Labour Market Activity Survey (LMAS) was conducted by Statistics Canada with the cooperation and support of Employment and Immigration Canada. This manual has been produced to facilitate the manipulation of the microdata files from the 1986-1987 longitudinal survey panel. Similar documents are available for users of the 1986 and 1987 cross-sectional data files. This document provides basic information of relevance to users of 1981 and 1986 Census data on families in Canada. Concepts pertaining to the identification of families are described, as is the way in which the information is collected and the data processed to form families. This report also contains some data which are not included in the regular census products such as common-law relationships and the presence of children in census and economic families. I am very pleased to write these few brief paragraphs introducing this book, and would like to take this opportunity to attempt to set the Toolpack project in an appropriate historical context. The Toolpack project must be considered to have actually begun in the Fall of 1978, when Prof. Webb C. Miller, at a meeting at Jet Propulsion Laboratories in Pasadena, California, suggested that there be a large-scale project, called Toolpack, aimed at pulling together a comprehensive collection of mathematical software development tools. It was suggested that the project follow the pattern of other "Pack" projects, such as Eispack, Linpack, and Funpack which had assembled and systematized comprehensive collections of mathematical software in such areas as eigenvalue computation, linear equation solution and special function approximation. From the that the Toolpack project would differ significantly from beginning it was recognized these earlier "Pack" projects in that it was attempting to assemble and systematize software in an area which was not well established and understood. Thus it was not clear how to organize and integrate the tools we were to collect into Toolpack. As a consequence Toolpack became simultaneously a research project and a development project. The research was aimed at determining effective strategies for large-scale integration of large-scale software tools, and the development project was aimed at implementing these strategies and using them to put high quality tools at the disposal of working mathematical software writers.
