Twilight struggles with first day of school jitters in the first book of this sparkly new chapter book series that follows the trials and triumphs of young foals attending Unicorn University—perfect for those who love magic, happiness, and My Little Pony! It's Twilight's first day at Unicorn University, and she's nervous from the tip of her sparkly horn to the end of her shimmery tail. And when Twilight gets nervous, sometimes she loses control of her magic power, and turns invisible by mistake! But she can't help her feelings. What if the other unicorns laugh at her power? What if she doesn't make any friends? To make matters worse, the first day of school is also class picture day. With everything going on, Twilight keeps accidentally flickering out of sight, until finally she turns invisible...and realizes she can't turn herself back! Can Twilight reappear in time for the class picture? Analysing political discourse in the British press during a time of crisis and austerity, this book examines how the concept of the welfare state has been constructed between 2008 and 2015. At a time when the financial crisis and government policies have put the welfare state under increased pressure, a corpus from four British newspapers from across the political spectrum - the Guardian, Daily Mirror, Daily Mail, and Daily Telegraph - is brought together to investigate the political debate on its evaluation and the ambiguity about its exact definition. Combining two theoretical approaches, Malgorzata Paprota outlines the figurative models and scenarios relevant to this element of the political system. The discourse-historical approach to discourse analysis is used to establish what the welfare state is, tracing the boundaries of the concept and which elements of political reality are explicitly associated with it. Conceptual metaphor theory is then used to explore the figurative conceptualisations of the welfare state. Together, this book shows the discursive construction, and shifting boundaries and metaphors, of the welfare state by the British press and its use in current political debates. This is the first of four volumes that will comprise A History of the University in Europe, covering the development of the university in Europe (East and West) from its origins to the present day. No other up-to-date, comprehensive history of this type exists: its originality lies in focusing on a number of major themes viewed from a European perspective, and in its interdisciplinary, collaborative and transnational character. Volume I, covering the Middle Ages, places the medieval European universities in their social and political context. After explaining the number and types of universities from their origins in the twelfth century to around 1500, it examines the inner workings as an institution and paints a general picture of medieval student life. Publisher's Note: Products purchased from third-party sellers are not guaranteed by the publisher for quality or authenticity, and may not include access to online tests or materials included with the original product. By focusing on the freedom of scientific research, teaching and study, the medieval university structure was modernized and enabled discoveries to become a professional, bureaucratically-regulated activity of the university. This opened the way for the victorious march of the natural sciences, and led to student movements--resulting in the university being ultimately cast in the role of a citadel of political struggle in a world-wide fight for freedom. Prospective college students and their parents have been relying on Loren Pope's expertise since 1995, when he published the first edition of this indispensable guide. This new edition profiles 41 colleges—all of which outdo the Ivies and research universities in producing performers, not only among A students but also among those who get Bs and Cs. Contents include: Evaluations of each school's program and "personality" Candid assessments by students, professors, and deans Information on the progress of graduates This new edition not only revisits schools listed in previous volumes to give readers a comprehensive assessment, it also addresses such issues as homeschooling, learning disabilities, and single-sex education. Includes universities, professional and technical schools. This is the first volume on the medieval University as a whole to be published in over a century. It provides a synthesis of the intellectual, social, political and religious life of the early University, and gives serious attention to the development of classroom studies and how they changed with the coming of the Renaissance and the Reformation. Some volumes issued in two parts. Excerpt from The University Record, Vol. 1: January, 1915 The University Record will be published as a quarterly. It will contain the Convocation addresses and statements; the actions of the Board of Trustees, especially appointments to the various Faculties and important legislation; significant actions of the various Faculties; and such administrative reports of importance as that by Dean Angell in the present issue. It will include also important items regarding individual members of the Faculties and such general events as should be mentioned in a university chronicle. In order that all members of the Faculties may be aware of the important past happenings, and may be informed also concerning arrangements for the succeeding quarter, each number will be issued without charge to all members of the Faculties. The co-operation of all in making each volume a worthy record of university progress is earnestly requested by the editor. Excerpt from Bulletin of the Cornell University, Vol. 1: Science My Expedition to the Amazonas, in 1870, was undertaken chiefly for the purpose of studying the geology of the valley, and of examining the table-topped hills, which last had been referred to the Drift. I wished, also, to take into the field a number of scientific students from Cornell University, in the expectation that some of them, at least, might be stimulated to devote themselves to the life study of some branch of Natural History. My funds consisted, in the first place, of the sum of $500, generously placed at my disposal by a friend in New York city, whose modesty, I regret, will not allow me to give his name. This formed a nucleus, to which Col. Edwin B. Morgan, of Aurora, N. Y., one of the trustees of Cornell University, kindly added $1,000, and Professor Goldwin Smith, $500. The Syracuse High School contributed $200, afterwards increased to $500. Messrs. Garrison & Allen, of the Brazilian Mail Steam Ship Company, kindly gave passages, at half fare, for myself and party. I was accompanied by my colleague, Prof. A. N. Prentiss, botanist, together with nine students of the University, and two others. We set sail from New York on the 23d of June, and arrived safely at Para, spending a day at St. Thomas, in the West Indies, in collecting corals and other marine invertebrates. At Para we established ourselves in private quarters, on the edge of the forest in Nazareth, and spent a month in training, my boys occupying themselves in collecting excursions in the immediate vicinity, though trips were made up the Acara, and to Carapi, Vigia, and Marajo.
